Hope

I made a small project of reading Frederick Manfred's book, Lord Grizzly, then seeing the movie The Revenant in January. They each are fictionalized versions of the true story of trapper and frontiersman Hugh Glass, who, in 1823, crawled 200 miles to safety through the South Dakota wilderness after being mauled by a bear and left for dead by his companions. There is a monument to Glass and a scrap metal sculpture of the attack in Lemmon.

The book is better than the movie. No big surprise. What I found interesting, in addition to the gritty detail and fastidious research, were the hues of an American Western ethos that rode off through the writing like the colors of a proverbial sunset – Glass revels in the frontier, where people (men) lived by their own code, independent, free of any laws or the obligations of society, where justice is meted out quickly and by those immediately involved. I think you can see that attitude still alive and well throughout the now completely tamed United States, and maybe especially in the West. We have a way of holding on to old fictions in the face of a completely different reality.

One big difference between the book and movie is that the movie, of course, has a Hollywood ending. A righteous Hugh Glass comes to a showdown with the man who left him for dead and in bloody, hand-to-hand combat; retribution is served. In the book, an equally indignant Glass does track down his offenders under a self-righteous banner of Divine Authority, but in the end, backs down from exacting his revenge, forgives his trespassers, and leaves vengeance to the Lord.

Despite the dark tones of both the book and the movie, and Glass's vengeful motivation, I think that the motivational factors that would propel a bleeding, festering person across the wilderness on hands and knees have to include a good measure of hope. My own version of the ethos of America is built on this. This is a land of hope. Even in constant conflict, injustice, need and competing visions of what America truly is, I think we have always operated on a good measure of hope. Hope for the rule of law. Hope for democracy. Hope for justice. Hope for a shining future.

Our theme for February is hope. We will address this with a good measure of fun, sweetness, and courage. I hope to see you here.

David's schedule in Sioux Falls is Feb. 7–21, 2016.

From the President Paul Thompson

February 2016

Our interim minister David Kraemer introduced the notion of the monthly theme. In February, the theme is "Hope."

What do we think about with the idea of "hope"? Hope is how we see the future. We see choices, plans, and options in the future, and we view it all with hope. We lie in bed in the morning, and hope gets us up, taking that shower, prepping for the day, hoping for the best.

All the cosmetic companies, all the clothing companies, all the personal care companies work on our hope for ourselves. We all hope to make our person look good, and this can be sometimes difficult. When you start in the morning, sometimes you think that you make yourself look pretty good; other times it seems less successful. At least, that's the case with myself.

When you are a parent, you begin with hope. A couple creates a child in the act of affection and love. And this is done in hope. The child arrives after the 9-month time, filled increasingly with the hope of the future. The child is unformed and very demanding. There is the need to feed the child, to comfort the child, to keep the child happy and optimistic. Every time you kiss your child, you are hoping for the future. There are little hopes, such as "I sure hope that Lizzie gets toilet-trained soon." We are working in hope to make those little improvements in the child all the time. But the little hopes are always done with bigger hopes in the background. We are working with our child in the hope that they will be successful, that they will be independent. And of course the biggest hope is that they live a life which is satisfying to them. Every child is a long attempt at using hope to make a good person out of the baby. Some of us succeed, sometimes the hopes are not realized. When you see the little baby, the hope is there, but you don't think of the possibility that all your hopes will not succeed.

We must never let go of hope, because hope will keep us trying to improve, trying to succeed, trying to make our place in our world. Never lose hope. Hope is really the very thing of life itself.

Here's hoping you found this interesting, and see you in church.

Introducing MiC Member Interest Center

A new endeavor will provide members and friends a way to share volunteer opportunities or activities with others. Serving at the Banquet sparked the idea. Many members are active in organizations that need volunteers for projects. If you are aware of such a need, there will be 3 ways to share the information:

- o Signup sheets in Eliza's Kitchen
- o A section of the newsletter
- o All Souls' Facebook page

The responsibility for communication is the event coordinator. You may complete a signup page and post it on a clipboard in the kitchen. If you'd like it in the newsletter, send the details (don't forget date/time/location and organization) to allsoulsnews@gmail.com prior to the 15th of the month. You may post the event on All Souls' private Facebook page as well.

Use MiC to share information on activities that may be of interest to members as well.

We hope this MiCophone provides another means to share our interests, support the community and enhance fellowship. The items posted are not endorsed by All Souls; this is simply a new way to share information.

Hope is the thing with feathers that perches in the soul
--and sings the tunes without the words
--and never stops at all.

Out and About New Group Enjoys Art Maze

A group from All Souls ventured out in the cold to experience Art Maze and enjoy dinner together. The night was great fun and we hope to have an activity each month. It may just be dinner and conversation, connecting with others and having fun is the goal.

This is a casual, sometimes spontaneous and low-maintenance-to-organize group. Marcy and Claudia are spearheading it and open to ideas for restaurants and things to do. Activities will be posted through MIC (see related article) and by email. If you'd like to be included in communication, give your email address to either of us. Otherwise, look for signup sheets in the MIC area of Eliza's Kitchen, a newsletter posting (when timing allows) or Facebook.

Theology on Tap

Sola gratia – Augustine

Sola fide – Luther

Sola scriptura – Calvin

So la ti do – Julie Andrews

What do these doctrines, famous in Christianity, (well, except for the last one) actually mean? Are they relevant in our lives today, especially as UUs? We will dig in to solae at All Souls in February, during Theology on Tap 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 10, which also happens to be Ash Wednesday, giving us plenty of stuff to talk about.

Theology on Tap is intended to be a stimulating discussion of theological topics with a light libation and food. In recent months, the food has become so much a part of this we've considered changing the title to "Food for Thought." For now, we will leave it as it is. But please come join us for a little nourishment for the soul.

Hope [hohp]

February 1 National Freedom Day

Major Richard Robert Wright Sr., a former slave, organized a movement for a national holiday to commemorate Lincoln's signing of the 13th Amendment. The resulting National Freedom Association proposed having a memorial date to call attention to the continuing struggle for freedom for African-Americans. Since President Lincoln had signed the 13th Amendment on the first day of February, that date was chosen.

Path To Faith Classes

Path to Faith is for anyone seeking to deepen knowledge and connection to All Souls Church and to Unitarian Universalism. These classes prepare people to be ingathered as members of All Souls, though membership is optional. Classes will cover what UUs believe, including time for sharing individual journeys; where we come from, our history as a movement as a church; and who we are in the world--our social justice focus and our connection to the larger movement.

We welcome you to join us. If you are interested, please contact Mark Sanderson, Rev. David Kraemer, or Holly Thompson, our office administrator.

"Spirit of Life"

"Spirit of Life" is prayer that was offered by Rev. David Kraemer on Dec. 15 at the Interfaith Prayers Service for Peace held at the First United Methodist Church.

Rev. David says, "I was honored to be invited to speak along with representatives of the Christian, Muslim, Buddhist, and Jewish communities in Sioux Falls, and doubly honored to by a strong participation in the vigil by many from All Souls."

Spirit of life,

We come from many paths, many traditions
We come not knowing even our own minds
Let alone the mind of another
We come in grief and in fear, in sorrow and need
We come seeking here some small shard of a broken world
Through which we might still see some light.

We come with this belief: that the truth seen by another,
freely shared and graciously received,
can help each of us see more clearly
and together, we can build a better world.

We seek forgiveness for all we have misunderstood
We seek reconciliation with those we have wronged
And with those who have wronged us
We seek healing, for our souls, for our nation, for the world community
May we find right relation with all people, and worth and dignity in each one.

This we promise, to remember here our highest aspirations
To make these manifest in the world
To keep an open mind and a warm heart
To always seek the answer to one more thing than we know
And to know love, seek justice, find peace.

In the name of all that is holy,

Amen

January 1 Banquet Serving

Submitted by Mark Sanderson
All Souls Unitarian Universalist and Spirit of Peace United Church of Christ jointly served at the Banquet on January 1, 2016 – new years day. All Souls was the prime sponsor of this event, preparing the meal under the direction of Banquet Chef Omar, and providing the funds for the meal. Seven All Souls members prepared the meal in the afternoon, and about 40 volunteers from both churches served the evening meal. We served 270 meals, including 27 for children. A delicious meal of turkey, roasted vegetables, mashed potatoes, an orange, along with coffee, water, and 27 gallons of milk was enjoyed by all.

We have already booked our next serving at the Banquet: Friday, January 6, 2017 – mark your calendars. And we look forward to assisting in a late spring/early summer, serving with our Banquet partner, Spirit of Peace.

Attention: If you are driving past and notice that the church sign out front is messed up (because the letters have been jumbled) please feel free to stop and fix it. We would appreciate it!
